To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to write a personal reference for Michael Irish.

I met Mike several years ago when I began attending a local church. I knew him initially because of his volunteer activities at the church and later as my husband and I developed a friendship with Mike and his wife.

In the time I have known Mike I have been impressed with the level of integrity he has shown when honoring his commitments. Whether volunteering his time or meeting with a friend, Mike shows up when he is expected and devotes himself to the pursuit. Mike's willingness to work has served him well both on the job (where I have known him to cover the shift of a sick or absent co-worker simply because he was asked) and in his personal life where he continually comes to the aid of friends and family. He has shown himself to be a loyal friend as well as a dependable volunteer.

Because Mike is quiet and soft-spoken, people who don't know him might miss that he is incredibly insightful and possesses uncommon intelligence. I am so pleased to see Mike pursuing his education because increasing his level of education will make him that much more successful in any pursuit. Mike will undoubtedly have success in any path he chooses and I know would greatly benefit from any aid you are willing to offer.

Sincerely,

Corrie W. Fletcher
